Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 14-19 (renumbered as 1-6) are allowed.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

It is well known in the prior art to use an exciter to generate and feed a radio frequency signal into an existing structure for the purposes of both long and short range communications, communications by definition involving a receiver. What distinguishes the current invention over the prior art is the use of a quasi-static non-propagating field (see application page 10 lines 3-7, wherein this type of field is defined, "Inside the enclosure, the field which is generated is very different from the 'far-field' depicted in Figure 1. There are no propagating, traveling waves inside the metal box shown in Figure 2. Inside, every point enclosed by the box is associated with an energy or voltage level. These point-by-point voltage levels vary according to the frequency of the input signal that energizes the box and the size of the box. The electromagnetic field may be called a 'quasi-static' field, since it does not produce traveling waves for distant receivers"), created by exciting a conductor within a structure to form a cavity resonator, (see page 10 lines 8-11 of the application wherein a cavity resonator is defined by applicant as "a conductive enclosure which is energized to produce a confined electromagnetic field within it's walls.")). When incorporating all of the limitations, none of the prior art discloses the features as claimed.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
